ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

The ESTA authorization is valid for a period of two years, or until the expiry of the passport, whenever it is within two years of receiving the authorization. It allows multiple entries to the United States without having to apply for a permit again. During one entry, you can stay in the United States for a maximum of 90 days, and the break between successive trips should be long enough to minimize the risk of suspicion of trying to live in the United States, although there is no specific recommendation on the length of such a break. A new ESTA authorization is required if:

- a new passport, also a temporary one, has been issued
- the applicant has changed his/her name and/or surname
- the applicant has changed gender
- the applicant changed the country covered by the visa waiver program
- there are other circumstances, such as a sentence, serious illness, which change the "yes" or "no" answer given in the application
